

Conservation: Workday at Woven Works Park, October 30, 2021

submitted by Melanie Stadler, Conservation Committee Chair

photos courtesy of City of Greensboro

Woven Works Park, one of the four corners of the Downtown Greenway, is home to the Bird, Bee, and Butterfly Pollinator Garden, filled with native plants that attract all kinds of wonderful creatures. The Piedmont Bird Club helps maintain the garden by weeding, mulching, and removing invasive plants, as well as planting native shrubs and perennials. A small, but hard-working group showed up on October 30 and got the garden into tip-top shape, including planting 80 new plants.

